

Contributors

Michael J. Brodhead is a historian at the Office of History, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, in Alexandria, Virginia. He is the author of Isaac C. Parker: Federal Justice on the Frontier and other books and articles on western American exploration and Corps of Engineers history, and editor of Nothing But Praise: A History of the 1321st Engineer General Service Regiment, by Aldo H. Bagnulo. He is retired from the History Department of the University of Nevada, Reno, and has worked at the regional branch of the National Archives in Kansas City and at the Nevada State Archives.

Philip L. Cantelon is the chief executive officer of History Associates Incorporated in Rockville, Maryland. He has taught at Williams College in Williamstown, MA, and served as a Fulbright Professor of American Civilization in Japan at Kyushu National University and Seinan Gakuin University in 1978–79. He co-authored Crisis Contained, on the Three Mile Island nuclear accident, and The American Atom; and has written several other histories. He was a founder and first executive secretary of the Society for History in the Federal Government, served as its president, and received its Franklin D. Roosevelt Award (2004) and Roger Trask Award (2011). Cantelon was also a founder and first executive director of the National Council on Public History.

David W. Haines is Professor of Anthropology at George Mason University. He is author of Cultural Anthropology: Adaptations, Structures, Meanings; The Limits of Kinship: South Vietnamese Households; and Safe Haven? A History of Refugees in America; editor of Refugees in America in the 1990s; and co-editor of Illegal Immigration in America. His academic career was preceded by government service at the federal and state levels, including working for the federal Office of Refugee Resettlement in the early 1980s.

George C. Herring is Alumni Professor of History Emeritus at the University of Kentucky. He has served as history department chair and acting director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce (spring 2005). His book From Colony to Superpower: U.S. Foreign Relations since 1776 received the 2008 Robert Ferrell Award from the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations. He served as president of SHAFR in 1989–1990, and editor of its journal Diplomatic History between 1982 and 1986. Herring has received National Endowment for the Humanities, Fulbright, and Guggenheim fellowships. In October 2005 he was a resident at the Rockefeller Study Center in Bellagio, Italy, and has been a visiting professor at the University of Otago in New Zealand, the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and the University of Richmond.

Arnita A. Jones was Executive Director of the American Historical Association from 1999 to 2010. During her tenure, the AHA completed major studies of graduate education in history and launched the National History Center, an initiative aimed at disseminating historians' research to a wider public. Jones also directed the Organization of American Historians, served as Program officer for Planning and Assessment Studies at the National Endowment for the Humanities, as Senior Historian at History Associates Incorporated, as Director of the National Coordinating Committee for the Promotion of History, and has taught at several colleges and universities. Jones holds a B.A. from Vanderbilt University and completed her doctorate in history at Emory University.

Betsy Rohaly Smoot joined the National Security Agency in 1983. She has worked in analytic, staff, and managerial positions both at Fort Meade and overseas. Mrs. Smoot joined the Center for Cryptologic History as a historian in October 2007. Her particular research interests include World War I, the Cold War, and Terrorism. Mrs. Smoot received a B.A. from Mary Washington College with a double major in Geography and Economics and an M.S. in Strategic Intelligence from the Defense Intelligence College. Among her current projects is a biography of cryptologic pioneers Colonel Parker Hitt and Genevieve Young Hitt.

Christopher A. Warren is a historian with the Naval History & Heritage Command in Washington, DC, and a Ph.D. student in the Department of History at George Mason University where he is studying military and American history. He is in the initial stages of dissertation research on the American military experience in the First World War. He received an M.A. in American history and a J.D. in law from George Mason University and is the recipient of the Randy Beth Clarke Ph.D. Fellowship. He has published articles in various historical and military studies journals.